NO. 88.

SENATOR CHILCOTT.

George M. Chilcott, the new senator from Colorado to succeed Senator Teller, who was appointed on Monday by Gov. Pitkin, was born in Trough creek valley, Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania, on January 2, 1828, and he is now 54 years old. In 1844 he went with his parents to Jefferson county, Iowa. He taught school subsequently and also studied medicine. In 1853 he was elected sheriff of Jefferson county on the Whig ticket, and served one term. He removed to Bart county, Nebraska, in '66, and was soon elected to the lower branch of the legislature.

The "Pike's Peak" excitement of '69 drew him to Colorado, and he arrived in Denver in the month of May. After prospecting for a time he was elected as a member of the Constitutional convention. In 1880 he removed to what is now Pueblo county, and here all his worldly possessions were stolen by a friend(?) Mr. Chilcott then resumed farming. He served as a member of the Colorado legislature of Colorado for the first two terms. In '83 president Lincoln appointed him as register of the land office for the district of Colorado. He held this position for four years when he was elected as a member of congress under the state organization then formed. But Colorado was not admitted to the union. On the following year, however, Mr. Chilcott was elected as delegate to congress, and served one term. He has since then been active in politics and was a candidate for the senate against Prof. Hill. He is said to be a man of unusual energy and enterprise.

The Clayton Belle was struck on the quarter deck and sunk in a few minutes. The second mate, John Dillon, Wm. Sullivan and Thomas Kirwin, of the crew of the Belle were on deck and were saved, but the captain and three others were lost. They were below but came up and got in a small boat which was sunk by the waves from the sinking vessel.

The names of the lost are, Captain Frank A. Calvin, who leaves a family at Oswego, New York; Nathaniel Brotherton, who leaves a family at Battle Creek, Mich.; Dell Brotherton and the female cook. The bodies were picked up by a tug and were badly damaged. The lost schooner was valued at $10,000 and insured for $8,000. The cargo consisted of pig iron and was valued at $15,000.

The Guitane Insanity.

New York, April 12.—The Herald's Chicago special on the new phase of Guitane says: This is a new and entirely unexpected turn of affairs. It is not known whether Guitane will be brought here or not. The case requires a trial by jury before Judge Loomis and the question will again come up as to whether Guitane was insane or not at the time of the shooting of President Garfield. It is not known that any newly discovered evidence will be introduced at the trial of the case in Chicago. Many witnesses who were not present at Washington will be in attendance here. The case will come regularly in the next term of the county court in May.

Pestilential Horse Thieves.

Denver April 12.—A Tribune Canon City special says: The trial of the convicts Diamond, Giles and Armstrong, who ran away last Christmas day with ten horses belonging to the state penitentiary, is in progress here to-day, and excites considerable interest, as it involves the question of allowing the convicts to work outside the prison walls. District Attorney Hoyt is prosecuting, assisted by Hon. John W. Jenkins, Messrs. Macon and Cox, assisted by Thomas Macon, of Denver, are defending the prisoners. The spring term of the district court will close here this week.

The nomination of Wm. E. Chandler, for secretary of the navy, and Secretary Hunt, for minister to Russia, were reported back from the naval and foreign committees of the senate with recommendation for confirmation.

The senate has confirmed Sterling P. Rounds, as public printer; Samuel C. Wright, as receiver of public moneys, at Carson City, Nevada.

Secretary Teller.

Washington, April 12.—Sec'y Teller enters upon his duties in the interior department on Monday. Important changes are rumored.

New York, April 12.—D. Ogden Mills, Jr., son of D. O. Mills, and Miss Ruth Livingston, daughter of the late Mortimer Livingston, were married at one o'clock this afternoon in Grace church, by the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Potter, rector of the church. Death of a Prominent Chicagoan.

Chicago, April 12.—W. A. Hurlbut, president of the Chicago ball club and of the national base ball league, died of heart disease this afternoon. He was a moving spirit in the organization of the league in '76, and has been its president, except the first year since that time. Chicago, April 11.—One thousand

THAT SWINDLE.Facts Concerning the Great Silk*Swindle.*New York and Boston Merchants Are*the Principal Losers.*The Hong Kong Swindlers.

Boston, April 12.—The Journal to-morrow morning will say concerning the China frauds: The firm of Vogel Bros., of Hong Kong, had succeeded in making for itself quite a reputation in the general trade between China and America and Europe after cutting under the market, but preserving strict integrity in their dealings until within a few months.

The first instance of sharp practice brought against them is the expedient they adopted last year. On one or two occasions they bought in a lump a vessel and cargo and immediately offered to sell in New York the staple goods the vessel contained "at cost and freight." Such offers were of course quickly snapped up and New York merchants awaited the results of their bargain, but when the vessel arrived they were called upon to pay as freight a sum almost large enough to buy the ship and certainly sufficient to bring the cost of the goods up to the full market rates. More recently the firm adopted methods more rankly illegitimate. Dealings in the Chinese trade are made by means of letters of credit. The importer obtains a letter of credit from some well known banking house. It is sent to Hong Kong and cashed by the local bankers when accompanied by the proper vouchers of shipment of merchandise. The shippers thus receive payment as soon as the goods are put on board the vessels. Late in 1881 a New York sugar refinery ordered, by cable, from Vogel Bros. a cargo of sugar, stating that a telegraphic letter of credit would be sent as soon as the instructions could reach its London bankers to that effect. Vogel Bros. immediately shipped a cargo of Chinese sugar of poor quality. It is stated, and local bankers paid the price of the cable order with the bills of lading. Two days later a telegraphic letter of the credit was received from London, where, upon Vogel Bros. immediately shipped a second cargo and successfully negotiated the dead letter credit with another Hong Kong banker. In the meantime the telegraphic orders and bills of lading were sent to London for collection, and the bankers knowing that the cargo had arrived cashed it, but by the next steamer came the real letter of credit which the banking house was obliged to cash, it being genuine. The loss therefore fell upon the banks, the consignees refusing to accept the second cargo. The next victims were European silk merchants. English and French silk trade with China is large, and the field for Vogel Bros' operations was quite extensive. They received orders for about sixteen thousand dollars worth of first grade silk. The payment was received before the shipment in all cases, the value of the goods being three hundred dollars per bale. Within a short time the goods reached their destination. The bales were found to be made up of outside dressing and fourth grade silk filled with shavings valued at about ten dollars per case, the estimated loss to the English and French merchants by this swindle amounts to $400,000. There is said to have been trouble also over a large consignment of camphor which the Vogel Bros. sent to a New York house, and which resulted to quite a serious loss to the importers. In the case of cargo of hemp received on the Richard Robinson and in which the firm of Cyrus Wakefield & Co. is one of those principally interested, the questions of placing the loss is an open one between the importers and banker. If the letter of credit called for the delivery of the hemp and the letter was cashed on the delivery of the matting, it is claimed that the bankers are responsible for making the wrong payment.

OSCAR WILDE.

He Passes Through Cheyenne Once Again.

Oscar Wilde, of whom we have all heard so much, passed through Cheyenne yesterday for Denver, where he is booked for a lecture. Our reporter has considerable difficulty in rounding him up but finally found him in the car.

We shall not undertake to give the interview as it took place verbatim, but only the substance thereof.

Mr. Wilde looks and appears like any other respectable gentleman who travels through the country either on business or for amusement. He puts on no style and would scarcely be noticed among the ordinary run of travelers that pass back and forth over the U. P.

He said that he saw no reason why the papers should assail him as they had done for he had not in his life, that he knew of, undertaken to say anything unjust or uncomplimentary to anybody else, and he hoped that the time would come when people would be considerate toward him and not take it for granted that he was a crank or an idiot. He had his views and ideas and had never sought to intrude them upon others, except in a reasonable way, and then only as any other person seeking to make an honest living would have done.

His reception and treatment on the Pacific coast, he said, was cordial and friendly, and all that he could expect. He was going to Denver to lecture, but was undetermined where he should go next.

When asked as to his opinion in regard to poetry he said that he believed the only true poetry ever written was based on some actual incident, or occurrence, and cited as an example Robert Burns' "Farewell, the Bonnie Banks of Ayr," written by him just before he expected to leave his own country and sail for the West Indies, probably never to return.

Mr. Wilde is a far different man from what most people who have read of him would expect to see. In appearance he is just as practicable and sensible about the ordinary affairs of life as a Cheyenne banker would be, and as the train started to roll out on the D. P. for Denver our reporter jumped off with the full belief that Wilde has been maligned and abused by the press unjustly and without reason.
